

TUCKAHOE WELCOMES MARK LEINWEAVER AND PERFECT PLAYCEMENT

On behalf of Tuckahoe Athletics Department, we would like to thank Mark Leinweaver and Perfect Playcement for their very informative and well-received presentation.

-Austin Goldberg
Director of Health, PE & Athletics

Q: What advice would you like to give to the students, parents, and coaches that will be reading this?

A: Choose the perfect college first and anything involving "extra-curricular" involved second, whether its sports, music, arts, etc. Finding a college or university that you feel comfortable at because its right in size and distance, offers courses and majors that appeal to you, provides personal and professional opportunities off-campus and allows a student to grow as a person over that four-year experience is most important. Those factors will establish a solid foundation to create any career path you desire.

5 Questions

By Tania Green

Q: How did the presentation at Tuckahoe go tonight?

A: I thought it went very well. I was impressed with the attention paid by every student and parent. Attendance was incredible, indicating that everyone there truly had the intention of opening their mind and learning more about the process.

Q: What do you enjoy most about presenting to students and schools?

A: Educating a student about how to best prepare for their future to give them the best opportunity to succeed. Knowing that my opinion on the topic could influence a positive, well-informed and educated decision on the college selection process means a lot to me.

Q: What is your profession and why did you choose it?

A: My "real job" is as a Major League Baseball agent. I chose it because I enjoy assisting professional baseball players develop in their career and life in general, specifically off the field. It is quite similar to the assistance and guidance I try to provide with my Perfect Playcement message.

Q: What studies did you have to take to become an agent?

A: I needed to be well versed in baseball, sales & marketing and communication. It is helpful to have some knowledge of law and statistics but not mandatory. The ability to think on your own, especially quickly and in a pressure situation, and communicate effectively are paramount characteristics associated and necessary for this job.

