Citizens Union of the City of New York is an independent, nonpartisan force dedicated to promoting good government and political reform in the city and state of New York. For more than a century, Citizens Union has served as a watchdog for the public interest and an advocate for the common good. We do so by informing the public debate and influencing the policy decisions that affect the lives of all New Yorkers.

Founded in 1897 to fight the corruption of Tammany Hall, Citizens Union helped elect the first reform mayor, Seth Low, in 1901. Since then, Citizens Union has spearheaded efforts for improved voting procedures, home rule for New York City, campaign finance reform, ethics and lobbying reform, historic preservation, city charter revisions and state government reform.

Citizens Union, recently described by the New York Times as “the influential government watchdog group,” works to ensure fair elections, clean campaigns, and open, effective government that is accountable and responsive to the citizens of New York.

Citizens Union Foundation is the nonprofit research and education organization affiliated with Citizens Union, though it is governed by a separate board of directors and operates with independent finances. Founded in 1948, Citizens Union Foundation monitors the deliberations and actions of government, conducts research, and analyzes the impact of proposed public policy and legislation at the city and state level.

Believing that an informed citizenry is the cornerstone of a thriving local democracy, Citizens Union Foundation publishes the news site GothamGazette.com, a front row seat to New York City and New York State policies and issues.
