Prospective DE Student/Parent:

We are currently offering Dual Enrollment courses from Richard Bland College:

- Psychology ($600.00 tuition fee for each semester)
- Pre-Calculus I (1st Semester)
- Intro to Statistics (2nd Semester)
- Pre-Calculus II

Students will receive high school credit (1 credit) and college credit (3-6 credits) at the same time!

A Professor from Richard Bland College travels to our campus to teach the Psychology courses, therefore tuition must be paid. The tuition fee for next year is approximately $600.00 per semester or $1,200.00 per year which is payable in two payments. Richard Bland College will send tuition bills in August and January. If the tuition is not paid, the student will be removed from the class and receive an F for that semester and, possibly, for the year. Remember this is a year-long class and students will not be allowed to drop the class after the first semester. There is no charge for the Pre-Calculus I & II and Intro to Statistics courses. There may be a required textbook, price may vary according to the class.

All Richard Bland College applications are online and can be completed at the following website:

Please note, you have until June 30, 2020 to change your course request if you decide not to take the course after you have completed/returned all required paperwork.

I understand the Dual Enrollment Psychology course taught at PGHS is offered through Richard Bland College and taught by their (RBC) Professors. Because of this there are tuition fees of approximately $600.00 per semester or $1,200.00 per year which is payable in two payments (August and January). There is also a required book, price may vary according to class. If the tuition is NOT paid, the student will be removed from the class and receive an F for that semester and, possibly, for the year.
