

BRAG LETTER

Every individual has a story – this is your opportunity as a parent/guardian to tell us your child's story.

College admission counselors look at applicants as potential community members. What can you tell us that would help distinguish your son/daughter? Your input can further personalize and present your child in a comprehensive and accurate manner. This important information will highlight your son/daughter as more than a high school transcript and SAT/ACT score. Your child's counselor often looks to include a statement from the parent in his/her recommendation.

In thinking about your child, please try to address the statements/questions listed below:

- What do you consider to be your child's outstanding accomplishments during these past four years? Why did you select these as most important?
- Tell us a story about your son/daughter during their high school years that exemplifies his/her character/personality.
- Describe your child's strengths as an individual and a learner. Be specific.
- Describe your child's challenges and how he or she manages/compensates.
- What role does your son/daughter play in the family?
- Tell us anything else you would like us to know about your child and/or family.

Please return to the Counseling Center by the first week in May.

Thank you.
