NONFICTION

Factual presentations of documented knowledge.

Nonfiction text dealing with an actual, real-life subject.

- Involves factual information about real elements such as animals, plants, or events in history
- The author primarily gets the information through research
- The author cites his or her sources (meaning they tell where they got the information from)
- The author's purpose would be primarily to INFORM the reader

REALISTIC FICTION

Fiction that could actually have occurred in a believable setting

- Stories that take place in modern times
- Characters are involved in events that could happen
- Realistic characters with possible problems

- Outcomes are reasonable and plausible.

ROMANCE

Novels of this type place their primary focus on the relationship and romantic love between two people.

- Must have an "emotionally satisfying and optimistic ending"

SCIENCE FICTION

Fiction based on imagined future scientific or technological advances and major social or environmental changes,

- Frequently portraying space or time travel and life on other planets.
- Stories that often tell about science and technology of the future
- Settings:
 - in the future
 - in space
 - on a different world
 - in a different universe or dimension

SPORTS

Events and activities within the story deal with the characters' participation in sports.

- Characters struggle with issues related to sports.
- Team sports are usually emphasized
- Plot and characterization often emphasize these such as team play and sportsmanship
