Habit 5: Seek First to Understand then to Be Understood.

This month lets focus on respecting each other by practicing habit 5: Seek first to understand then to be understood. A great way to respect and communicate is to listen actively and understand other people's views and feelings, even if they are different from our own. By taking the time to listen to another person, you reach a higher level of communication. Parents can practice simple listening skills with their children at home with some easy activities.

- Demonstrate how saying the same phrase in different tone of voice can give the phrase a completely different meaning. Try emphasizing different words in the phrase "I didn't say you did it" and then have your child tell you how the meaning changed.
- Use Body language to play a game with your child where you each try to guess each other emotions (happy, sad, angry, etc.) without using any words.
