

Turquoise Trail Charter School serves approximately 650 students between elementary and middle school with a bilingual education program.

OVERVIEW

The ELD (English Language Development) program is established to provide students with the academic and social structures needed for both school performance and everyday living. The program functions in grades K-8 for us in the state is K-12.

Bilingual Education in New Mexico

The goal is to graduate students who are proficient in English and their home language in all four domains of listening, speaking, reading and writing. Students receive daily instruction in English called ELD (English Language Development), and their home language called ESL (English as Second Language), and the cultures of New Mexico.

About Bilingual Programs

Schools with bilingual education programs submit an application to the State Department of Education each spring for implementation in the new academic year.

- In New Mexico, an English Plus State, Hispanic students comprise the largest population of students in bilingual education.
- TTCS currently has Heritage Language Programs K-8

Please contact our school for specific information regarding our bilingual program.
