The High School of Art & Design is pleased to announce its Honors Illustration show, which features works from the Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes.

The exhibition opens with a reception at the John B. Kenny Gallery from 5-7pm, Thursday, March 28, 2019. The gallery is located at 245 East 56th Street, New York City.

The Honors Illustration department does not disappoint this year with themes of social justice, social media, racism and phobias across the spectrum. As Meryl Streep once famously said, "Take your heart, make it into art", these students have risen to the challenge and created thought-provoking, sensitive and conscientious work that is truly of our time. Students, high schoolers in particular, have been in the spotlight recently for unfortunate tragedies, when they are at the age when academic and artistic achievement should be celebrated. The students at the High School of Art & Design, ever passionate about the world around them, have explored no holds barred, and partnered deeply with their art forms to create this stunning show.

The exhibition will run through April 5, 2019.
