Students Supporting KEEP is a JJMS club which strives to educate its members and the greater school community about the importance of keeping girls in school. KEEP stands for the Katonah Educational Exchange Program, an organization of women who saw the need to help girls who were denied an education in their home country. Their primary focus has been the support of the Kakenya Center for Excellence in Kenya. The KCE is a school for girls in rural Kenya. The girls who attend this school would probably not have had the opportunity to advance their education beyond the primary level. JJMS students in the "KEEP Club" as it is known, support the efforts of "Mama KEEP" and the JJHS club. Last year we were able to meet the founder of the KCE and some of its students when they visited the US. We also helped to raise money for scholarships, offered an after school movie showing of "Girl Rising", made posters to educate JJMS faculty and students, and generally had fun together!
