Dear District Partners,

During these uncertain times, as we all navigate the balance of safety and the vital mission of ensuring students' successful academic journeys, we at the Center for Special Services, have been carefully monitoring our initial weeks of our hybrid models and will be taking the next steps to bring additional students in for more in-person days of instruction. Some of these adjustments will take a phased in approach over several weeks. We recognize that some families will still opt to have their children participate remotely, and if that changes, in some programs, we may need to shift our instructional models once again to adjust with our enrollment as we support student needs and family decisions. The first steps in this process will begin November 2nd.

Principals will be in communication with districts and families to ensure that all arrangements can be made so all transitions are smooth for these schedule adjustments. We appreciate your support and patience as we work to best serve every student.

Sincerely,

Andrea Byrne
